

MAUGHAN NEARS CHEYENNE ON FLIGHT OVER U. S.

THROUGHS ARE IN POSSESSION OF METROPOLIS

Each Delegation Gets Noisy Welcome as it Arrives in City

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, June 23.—The great quadrennial jubilee of the democracy is passing through its final fevered stage of pre-convention rivalry and enthusiasm.

Fifth Avenue and the hotel district of Manhattan resounded today to the tramp of cheering delegations and the blare of marching bands, while out-runners from the forces of the principal candidates scurried everywhere to bring new arrivals into camp and consolidate the legions already assembled behind their favorites.

From a balcony of his hotel, William C. McAdoo exhorted a group of howling western delegates to stand by him to the last ditch and they shouted an assurance that they would.

New York Acclaims Smith
New York noisily acclaimed its allegiance to its favorite, Al Smith, in the greatest civic parade in the history of the city. He was cheered by thousands wherever he went.

Both the McAdoo and Smith men continued to claim victory as the last of the state delegations perfected their convention organizations, but the partisans of a dozen other candidates only redoubled their activities.

The Indiana friends of Senator Ralston announced after one look at the situation that they had determined to disregard his request and place his name formally before the convention.

Meantime convention officials put the finishing touches on their Madison Square Garden arrangements.

BUILDINGS AND ROADS TAKE UP SURPLUS LABOR

Industrial Survey of State Made By Illinois Bureau.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Springfield, Ill.—Increase of building work during this summer, and labor needed for Illinois roads will absorb a large amount of the present surplus of labor in the state, according to industrial surveys made in the larger cities of Illinois.

In a summary of the labor situation the building industry was listed as the only industry at present reporting healthy and normal condition. Trade workers in the building industry are fully employed in the Chicago industrial district, summer shows, and the greater amount of employment is listed in other industries.

Unemployment in Chicago is attributed mainly to the migratory worker. The larger cities are filled with "transients," who are dissatisfied with work at home, and who sooner or later return to their original work. Many come from the farms for a short time and return, it was stated.

Farm help, according to the Farm Bureau statistics, is plentiful in most parts of Illinois, but it appears from the report that there is still employment for some men in a few parts of the state.

Many larger industries have cut their forces within the past month. The coal industry, long a top figure in the industrial sphere is now in an advanced stage of dullness, and many coal mining companies have gone into bankruptcy in the past few months.

Steel mills, the report shows, are operating at about sixty-eight percent capacity, and this is not rated as dangerously below normal.

In other states, particularly in Indiana and Michigan, there is a great surplus of common labor, but it is expected that this surplus will be reduced, due to the great amount of road work to be inaugurated during the summer by those states. Indiana has very little unemployment among the steel workers.

The automobile industry has been making slow progress, the report shows. However, it is predicted that better conditions will soon be brought about, since the schedules for June were shown to be far ahead of those for May. Inclement weather has delayed road work in Ohio, but the surplus of workers in that state will soon be absorbed.

Walked Off 100-ft. Cliff; Fell on Rocks, Lives to Tell of It

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Alton, Ill., June 23.—Owen Mayberry, 45, of Belletrac, Ill., lives to tell the story after having a fall of close to 100 feet over a bluff at Alton, Sunday night. He wandered down bluff street, an exclusive residence street, climbed a fence at the end and aimlessly walked in the dark over the bluff. He slid down a clay bank, in deep mud for 35 feet and shot over a rock ledge to a pile of loose rock below.

Neighbors saw him go over the edge and by a roundabout way got to the foot of the bluff and there found Mayberry prostrate on a pile of loose rock blasted down from the top ledge by quarrymen. He was taken to a hospital suffering from some bad bone fractures. He told his rescuers that he was "lost" and walked over the edge of the bluff.

LIGHTNING BOLT STUNS FARMER; THROAT IS CUT

His Head Fell Through Window; Condition is Very Serious.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Mt. Carroll—One of the most peculiar accidents ever narrated in this section happened Friday morning during the electrical and wind storm, in which Ed Roberts, a prosperous farmer, was so badly injured that the outcome is hard to foretell. Mr. Roberts lives on the old Keesh farm about a mile south and east of Wacker. While the storm was at its height he was standing in the kitchen near the telephone, peering out of the window, his face close to the glass. A bolt of lightning struck an electric pole near the house and followed the wire into the room, stunning Mr. Roberts so that he fell forward, his head going through the window pane. In his half-conscious state his head dropped on to the jagged glass, catching on the throat on the right side.

From Ear to Ear
His throat was cut almost from ear to ear, the gash being a horrible one. Dr. Colehour was called and made a quick trip to the farm, finding the man covered with blood and still bleeding greatly. The physician at once sewed up the wound and staunching the flow of blood, but the injury is a very serious one. The windpipe was almost severed, and Mr. Roberts can breathe only with difficulty. He was very much weakened from the loss of blood and what the outcome will be the attending physician can hardly contemplate, but he has hopes that he can bring about his recovery. Dr. Colehour says it is the most peculiar accident he ever encountered in his professional career. The gash is a deep one and the glass barely missed the jugular vein, although several large blood vessels were severed. Mr. Roberts is about 35 years of age and one of the best known farmers of that section. His wife did a great service in aiding him in his stunned condition and caring for the wound as best she could until the arrival of the surgeon.

BULLETIN.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
St. Joseph, Mo., June 23.—Lieut. Russell L. Maughan, en route from New York to San Francisco in his third attempt to span the continent between dawn and dusk, hopped off at 11:37 1/2 a. m., central standard time after spending nearly forty minutes here.

Maughan was flying low. He twice circled the field and then glided down to a dry spot. He landed in St. Joseph 32 minutes earlier than he did in his last attempt, July 19, 1923, when his plane went as far as Rock Springs, Wyo.

The aviator, when he landed, was taken to hangars across the field where he asked for cold chicken and a glass of milk.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Mitchell Field, N. Y., June 23.—A lone airman, Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, this morning, began a race with the sun in the hope of spanning the length of the earth's circuit before dark.

Two previous unsuccessful attempts had not dampened his ardor and following a light breakfast the trail blazer took the air in his 375 horsepower single seater plane at one-half minute before three o'clock, eastern standard time.

Some few clouds were in the sky but the Eastern star behind glowed as a guide and a half moon lit his way over the Alleghenies. One hundred and fifty spectators watched the departure.

Crispy Field at San Francisco lies 2670 miles west. The flight is scheduled to consume sixteen hours and forty minutes, just four minutes less than the maximum amount of daylight afforded him.

Hopes to Cut Stops
From his margin of time the four re-fueling stops may take two hours but he hopes to cut each stop to a third of its scheduled time.

Before retiring for a short rest late in the evening, the lieutenant was jovial and apparently carefree, but when he arose and went to the field his face was set.

July 9 of last year, he set out with the same hopes in the optimism of a first trial.

Two Attempts Failed
Midway across the country a small motor ailment forced him down. Ten days later a second attempt was begun.

At Rock Springs (Wyo.), 600 miles from his goal an oil leak forced him down.

This time those details have been more carefully watched.

REPAIRED OIL LINES

Dayton, O., June 23.—Lieut. Russell L. Maughan arrived here at 7:04. He took to the air at 8:15 on the next leg of his flight, with St. Joseph, Mo., as the destination.

Maughan covered the first lap of his journey, New York to Dayton, 575 miles in four hours and seven minutes slightly better than the schedule planned.

Progress of the flight was delayed one hour and 11 minutes here for repairs to a gasoline line. Maughan paced restlessly back and forth. Be-

Extension Tourists Visited Bloomington

Bloomington, Ill., June 23.—(By the Associated Press)—Invoking the spirit of Jesse Fell, founder of the city of Normal, who is reputed to have planted 30,000 trees with his own hands, thus giving the place its name as "the evergreen city," leaders of the Art Extension Tour of Northern Illinois, left here at 11 o'clock this morning for Eureka and Peoria.

Lorndo Taft, chairman, and Dr. R. E. Hieronymous declared one of the objects of the art extension movement was the creation of a spirit in each community that would produce such persons as Jesse Fell.

The ultimate object of the movement, Dr. Hieronymous said, was the establishment of a state wide program of beautification. Mrs. Spencer Ewing, at the Bloomington meeting this morning said the hard roads of Illinois were the most excellent means of developing "latent beauty spots."

She said it was left for the people to decide whether our hard roads are to be "mediocre avenues of travel or flowery lanes."

AMBOY GIRL IS BADLY HURT IN MISHAP SUNDAY

Three Automobile Accidents Over Week-end in Vicinity.

Miss Olive Young, daughter of Merritt J. Young of Amboy, was badly cut and bruised in an automobile accident on the Lincoln Highway just east of the city limits last evening, about 7 o'clock. Miss Young was driving a Ford sedan into Dixon. On the Franklin Grove hill she is said to have made an attempt to pass another car, in which Arthur Carnes and son of this city were returning to Dixon.

As she turned out she observed another car going east and attempted to prevent a head on collision. In doing so she hooked the rear wheel of the Carnes car, tearing it off and crashing the fender. Her sedan nose-dived, throwing the young lady through the windshield. She received a gash in the back which is said to have required 16 stitches to close, aside from other lesser cuts and bruises. Her father and brother and Miss Cleo Vanderhoff of this city who were with her, escaped with minor bruises and cuts.

Polo Man Hurt
Leo Irvin of Polo, driving a Ford coupe was cut and bruised about 10:30 last evening when his car turned over on the Lowell park road near the bridge at the seven mile branch. He was brought to Dixon where a physician attended him and then returned to his home. The car was taken to a Dixon garage. Irvin was cut about the hands and arms with bits of glass from the broken windshield.

Accident This Morning
A Ford sedan, owned and driven by G. S. Aylsworth of Prophetstown, was badly damaged on the Lincoln Highway east of Dixon this morning about 10:30 when it collided with one of the Standard Oil company's trucks. The driver of the truck was turning into a farm yard when the Prophetstown car crashed into it. None of the occupants were injured. The car was taken to a local garage for repairs.

TAG DAY NETTED NEAT SUM HERE FOR POOR KIDS

$370.06 Collected in Heart Sale Here Saturday.

Dixon folk opened their hearts and purses on Saturday last to help care for the destitute women with children in care of the Volunteers of America by contributing the generous sum of $370.06 to that worthy cause. Every one connected with the affair was well pleased and deeply grateful to all who in any way helped make the day successful.

A statement issued by the organization's representative says: "To the city officials, the newspapers, the merchants who furnished the incentives for the children's efforts as well as to Miss Mary A. Erwin's capable leadership full credit should be given; neither must the public's generosity in patronizing the youthful workers be omitted. From early in the morning until late in the afternoon each of the grade girls and boys played the merry game of competition for the seven prizes and movie tickets and at the close of the contest it was found that Edna Mae Mercer was entitled to the first prize, having collected $12.20. The second won by Wilma Stanley, who had $17.04; Dorothy Hoff had $15.87, and received the third. The fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh were won by Frances Calkins, $13.89; Gertrude Wallin, $13.19; Gladys Swartz, $12.80; Ruby Reinhardt, $12.72. All the other children were made happy with the movie passes.

Many Stunts to Give Pleasure to Democratic Visitors

New York, June 22.—The fertile minds of prominent New Yorkers, Republican and Democrat, who head welcoming delegations for the National Democratic Convention are hatching novel stunts so rapidly that program directors have forsaken the idea of compiling a fixed schedule of events.

Thus, instead of a list of imposing mass functions for the 2,600 delegates, alternates and their families and friends, there have been arranged scores of less ponderous entertainments. These will be of an informal nature, so planned that they need not be disrupted by a change of the convention business program, but can be sandwiched into the visitors' schedule whenever opportunity for a little frolic is presented.

It is intended, for instance, to hold a reception and once aboard one of the largest American ocean liners some night during the convention. Inasmuch as the Leviathan will reach port on the sixth day of the session, the party probably will be held aboard her at her pier in the Hudson River.

There will be pilgrimages to the former home of one of the Democratic party's most historic characters, Samuel J. Tilden. His famous estate, "Greystone," is now possessed by Samuel Untermyer, who has offered to throw open the beautiful grounds to authorized delegations of convention visitors. A thousand private automobiles have been volunteered for the transportation of pilgrims over the scenic highway bordering the Hudson, to "Greystone."

It is expected that few of the 200,000 or more visitors to New York City during the convention period will return home without having at least one picture of themselves taken here, but it has remained for the Nebraska delegations' reception committee to assure its guests that they will be caricatured by famous cartoonists. United States District Attorney Hayward, a Republican, heads the Nebraska entertainers. On his committee are John Cassel of the Evening World and Claire Briggs of "When a Feller Needs a Friend's" fame. They have been pledged to caricature every Nebraskan who will pose for them.

Another spectacle in which all the delegates may participate will be a "mermaid fishing contest" at the Briarcliffe Manor pools. Visitors are asked to bring casting rods and fishing tackle. The mermaids who will be nationally known swimming and diving beauties, will be the fish. The game will be to hook and land them. Prizes will be awarded the most successful anglers.

Although most of the spontaneous entertainment to be furnished by welcoming committees for states and territories will be without program, the city will lavish part of the $200,000 it has appropriated upon huge formal functions.

There will be a reception for 5,000 persons in Washington Square the night before the convention; at least one grand ball in which all may participate; a mass festival at Coney Island; an excursion to the military academy, West Point, and numerous other large-scale entertainments. The crowning feature of the formal program will be a parade of the police, fire and other departments, an imposing event of annual occurrence which this year was postponed until convenient time. It will be accompanied by an army, navy and marine demonstration on land, water and in the air.

DELUGE SWEEP OVER SECTION IN TWO STORMS

Nearly Inch and Half of Rain Fell: Four Dead in the Midwest

Two severe storms, each accompanied by high wind which damaged many trees, and in which a total of nearly an inch and a half of rain fell, swept over this section of the state Sunday afternoon and during the night.

At noon today no reports of serious damage anywhere in this section had reached this office, wind and hail having accounted for most of the loss sustained. In the vicinity of Rochelle the hail is reported to have been especially severe.

Many auto and picnic parties were caught in the deluge and the drenching of participants marred the pleasure of otherwise delightful outings. The government register here showed a total of 1.46 inches of water to have fallen in the two storms.

Hail Through Auto Tops

While returning home from DeKalb, William and Harold Bennett and families were in a severe hail, rain and wind storm between DeKalb and Rochelle. The storm broke about 12:15 Sunday noon and was one of the hardest storms that has visited that vicinity in many years. The hail stones were said to be as big as hen's eggs and in many instances they were blown with such force as to send them through the tops of automobiles along the Lincoln Highway. Many drivers sought refuge in farm yards where they remained until the storm had passed.

FOUR KNOWN DEAD

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, June 23.—One of the worst summer storms in years swept the upper Mississippi river valley yesterday, taking a toll of at least four lives and doing hundreds of thousands of dollars property damage.

Water Is Endangered

The most serious menace to Chicago followed the storm in threatened pollution of the drinking water supply. The city health commissioner warned that all water should be boiled after the storm reversed the current in Calumet river and caused sewage to be poured into Lake Michigan.

The steamer Saugeauk was disabled in the lake with 700 passengers aboard, but rode out of the storm. A fleet of sailing yachts caught off shore were forced to run before the gale with bare poles.

Six government air mail planes were wrecked at Omaha, Neb., when the roof was blown off their hangar. Southwestern Minnesota bore the brunt of the storm. One man was killed near Tracy, near which hundreds of farms were hard hit. St. Peter suffered considerably from the storm which attained the portion of a tornado in a fifty mile sweep, from Lake Benton to Lambert.

Traffic Impeded

In Chicago the torrential downpour, accompanied by wind of nearly forty miles an hour, flooded streets, tore down wires and seriously impeded traffic.

Sweeping down suddenly, the storm caught a foursome at the Olympia Fields Country Club, killing a caddy and injuring another caddy and three of the players. A city fireman was killed by lightning and a janitor, attempting to close a window, fell eleven floors to his death.

A panic ensued when a circus tent collapsed in South Chicago and caught a thousand persons under the canvas.

NEW TEMPLE WRECKED

Minooka, Ill., June 23.—The new Masonic Temple, nearing completion, collapsed, many buildings were unroofed, chimneys blown down and great trees uprooted in the wind storm yesterday. No one was hurt but much property damage resulted.

The new temple, a $15,000 structure was ready for the roof and only last Wednesday the contractor took out $10,000 insurance.

HARD IN KNOX CO.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Galesburg, Ill., June 23.—Another severe windstorm, bringing with it a heavy downpour of rain, struck this section yesterday afternoon. Knoxville and the country east of Galesburg felt the force of the storm, more than this city, a number of trees and telephone wires being torn down there. There was little damage.

Boys Return from Their Finest Camp

Saturday about noon the boys who have been camping at the Pines in Camp Yoncheus pulled stakes and returned to the city, having completed their full camp schedule. Although rain soaked the camp a few times it did not interfere with the schedule and with the exception of one campfire which had to be cancelled, the program was carried out in its entirety. Every boy expressed himself as having the best time camping in his life and without doubt it has been one of the most successful camps ever conducted by the Dixon Y. M. C. A. Aside from being one of the most successful camps it has taught the boys self-reliance and American citizenship in the character-building environment they were surrounded with. The boys have returned with browned faces and sore, sunburned shoulders but every parent is more than pleased with having sent his boy to camp. Mr. Hunt, Secretary of the "Y," said this morning that much larger preparations will have to be made for next year's camp and it is likely that two sessions will be held instead of one.

The Girl Scouts, under the leadership of Miss Ruth Utley with a competent corps of leaders, are at the present time using the same equipment at the Pines.

FIRE AND POISON FIGHT ARMY WORM IN THIS VICINITY

Dread Parasite Has Made Appearance on Many Farms Near Dixon.

The army worm has made its appearance in Dixon township, and according to reports today, is doing a vast amount of damage to the crops. Farmers and Dixon business men joined together yesterday morning in a crusade against the pest along this city along the Black Hawk Trail. Every kind of vegetation in the pathway of these pests is being destroyed and evidence of their working is plainly visible in the vicinity of the Hugh Bennett farm on the River road. Yesterday morning a force of 25 men assembled and started a drive against the worms on the George Miller farm, formerly the Hugh Bennett place. Here the worms had started through a field of rye and the pasture and were entering a section of timber. Pines were built and fed, burning toward the worms, destroying millions of them.

Fed Them Poison

On the Frank Miller farm, the army worms made their appearance in the corn field and another plan of destruction was used. A furrow was plowed around the field and in this, a mixture of bran, molasses and strychnine was placed. As the worms gradually worked their way into the trench and then ate the poison, they died and were thus prevented from making further progress. This is the system that has been adopted generally to stop the pests and has been used very successfully in other parts of the county in previous seasons.

Frank Lint reported last Saturday afternoon, that he had seen an "army" of the worms crossing the road near the Oscar Schick farm, east of the city.

WATCHMAN AT COLONY IS HELD ON WET CHARGE

Charged with Having Intoxicating Liquor on State Grounds.

Robert Darter, employed as night watchman at the Dixon state colony for the past three weeks, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Sheriff E. C. Riley for transporting and possessing intoxicating liquor on state property. Darter was taken into the county court this morning on an information and pleaded guilty to both counts. Judge John Crabtree assessed a fine of $100 and costs on each count. Darter was unable to pay the fines and was sent to the county jail for 40 days. The arrest resulted from a celebration staged by Darter Friday night when he appeared at the institution in a highly intoxicated condition, according to the report made to Sheriff Riley by colony authorities. He with another employee were dismissed from service and Darter arrested.

DEMOCRATS FIND NOTHING CERTAIN, EXCEPT THEY MEET

Clamor of Conflicting Claims Greet Delegates in N. York.

By Associated Press Leased Wire.
New York, June 23.—Eleventh hour arrivals for the democratic national convention found themselves in the midst of a bewildering clamor of conflicting claims for various candidates and arguments over controverted questions of policy.

Sunday's maneuvering had brought no clear trend to indicate the course of events after the convention assemblies tomorrow, except that it is likely to be prolonged by fights on the floor over platform planks and possibly some of the rules, as well as the battle for the presidential nomination.

With three of the most prominent active candidates on hand, their managers put still more pressure today behind efforts to consolidate their supporters for the opening of the convention and the squadrons from other camps did likewise. Senator Underwood of Alabama, reached New York yesterday. William G. McAdoo and Governor Alfred S. Smith continued their conferences.

Platform Draft Ready

A tentative platform was almost ready today for consideration of the resolutions committee, but the group of leaders which has drafted it recognized that a number of planks—especially those dealing with foreign relations, the Ku Klux Klan and law enforcement—are likely to cause bitter controversy.

The traditional party requirement of a two-thirds vote to select a nominee remains the center of gossip over the possibility of a rules fight. Proposals to replace it with a rule permitting nomination by a simple majority are advanced openly by a few, but they keep bobbing about in pre-convention talk.

The general expectation of a lengthy convention was emphasized by the tentative state of the program worked out by the managers. Conferences yesterday failed to bring a definite decision whether the keynote address of Senator Harrison of Mississippi, as temporary chairman, should be made at the opening session or put off until night, so it could be heard by a large radio audience.

DECORATE THE LIVES OF THE LIVING—

(By Sophie Irene Loeb.)
Decorate the lives of the living Every day of the year.

As you decorate the graves of the dead.

The hostesses had arranged a circular tea room effect, by placing small tables around which were screens draped with sprays of syringa. The tables were covered with crepe paper in ingenious designs of the class colors, light blue and gold. Each had a large bouquet of choice flowers and pansies were the favors.

The program given was, piano solos by Shirley Wickley and Dorothy Randall, a song by Winifred Rawls, readings by Miss Mabel Kay, and piano solos by Misses Josephine Whitish and Emma Ankeny.
Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mesdames Jannie Wickley, Minerva Barron, Nettie Coakley, Anna Randall, Ella Hefley, Mary Rupert, Hannah Hoggarth, Marie Embody, Misses Mabel Kay and Caroline Winden.

JEAN PATOU CREATION

This model is wearing one of the latest creations of Jean Patou that gives a very good idea of what skirt lengths and line for fall will be. The waist is lengthened and the skirt shortened until the belt practically cuts it half and half. There is nothing to relieve the severity of cut but the wide belt of white leather with markings in Chinese red. The dress and hat are of the same material, black kasha.

OLD TIMERS AT CONVENTION DO LITTLE WORRYING

Agitation to Do Away with 2-3 Rule Not New, They Say.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, June 23.—Veteran among the democratic hosts gathered here for the party's national convention refuse to get excited over the agitation for abrogation of the century-old two-thirds rule.

Party historians point out that the rule by which a democratic nomination is made by a two-thirds vote of the convention, has been a subject of discussion in almost every national convention, and repeated efforts to change it have been without success. It was adopted first in 1832 but applied only to the vice president.

The rule was extended to apply to the presidential nomination in the next convention.

A bitter fight over the rule was waged in the convention of 1860, meeting at Charleston, S. C., when proslavery leaders insisted on the rule because of their objection to Stephen A. Douglas, who commanded a majority of the delegates.

Proviso Lost Sight of
The convention of 1876 adopted the two-thirds rule, but passed a resolution recommending that succeeding conventions abolish it. This direction apparently was lost sight of.

On three occasions only has a candidate in a democratic convention failed after receiving a majority vote to obtain the necessary two-thirds. Besides Douglas, the other two were Van Buren and Champ Clark.

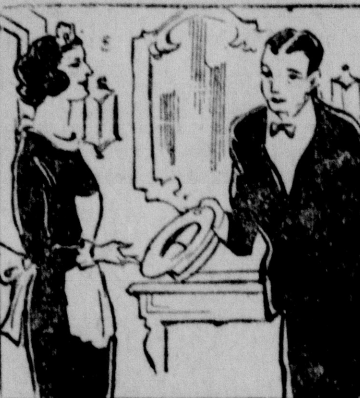

In the case of Clark, it was pointed out, the majority of twelve votes which he received might not have been obtained except for the state unit rule, which has accompanied the two-thirds rule. In the New York and Illinois delegations alone, it was recalled, there were enough Wilson delegates to have overcome Clark's majority.

Some leaders are in New York for the present convention proposing that it might be well at present to adopt the two-thirds rule with the proviso that if a candidate receive a majority on a given number of ballots the convention be polled to ascertain if the candidate had a majority of all the delegates voting and that if so the candidate then should be declared the nominee.

Seaplane Records are Broken by Yanks Fliers

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, June 23.—Four world records for seaplanes, including the endurance and distance records were broken, and one world record established by Lieutenants Mead and Price in a flight which ended early today, when their naval craft was forced down by engine trouble.

GOOD MANNERS. ASKS FOR HOSTESS

A gentleman paying visits always asks if the hostess is at home. If she is, he leaves his hat and stick in the hall and also removes and leaves his gloves—and rubbers should he wear them.

A new type of scouting, bombing and torpedo plane made a sustained flight of 13 hours and 23 minutes and covered a distance of 1,550 kilometers. The present endurance record is 11 hours and 16 minutes and the distance record, 1,275 kilometers.

In addition, the flight smashed the speed record for both the 500 and 1,000 kilometer distances with an average of 73.41 miles an hour against the record of 71.98 miles for the first and 74.27 miles against the record of 70.49 miles for the second. For the 1,500 kilometer distance, a record of 74.17 miles an hour was set.

The Nut Cracker

Ancient and charming custom of balloting ball games on belligerent basis of non-skid left hooks and self-lubricating right crosses is being revived.

Revived is pretty and proper language. After recent massacre between Yanks and Tygers, pulmotors, Big Bens, diabolical rays, and a Hiram Johnson bellows were needed to revive infuriated athletes.

This was putting soup spots on other vest. Ball games these days are plainer than keynotes' speech, and usually it's the customers who have to be revived.

MIGHT NOT BE AN UNCOOUTH IDEA AT THAT IF THE BOYS REPLACE THE LIVELY BALL WITH THE LIVELY FIRST.

One Punch O'Goofy can remember when knuckle parties were as much a part of the games as left field foul line and unmuzzled hot dogs.

"In those days," remarks Mr. O'Goofy, "everything went, including your ears, if you didn't duck quick enough."

"They had a K. O. column in the box score, and the summary would read: 'Knockouts: Kelly, 3; black eyes, Sweeney, 5; teeth lost, McGraw, 6; hit by pitcher (with iron pipe), McGurdy, Chyonski, Kopoleskie and Ryan. Left on bases (unconscious), Murphy, Cohen, Kelly, Schwartz. Arrests, 48. Time: 90 days and costs.'"

Day after Yanks and Tygers put on their Roman holiday 40,000 gore-bathed fans stormed park. This shows noble, upstanding American taxpayer.

HOME FURNISHING. WINDOW SHADE REPLACED

The day of the window shade is gone. Instead, draw curtains or draperies are used. The French door windows, of course, cannot have shades, and the ordinary sash windows can do without them.

ers are against rowdyism in all chaste forms and Judge Landis' system of dignifying baseball is just what the doctor ordered.

Turnstile fish at ball games don't care who wins as long as home ensemble doesn't lose, or how many fights are started as long as home talent finishes 'em.

AND BEST WAY TO FINISH THEM. THEY HOLD IS WITH LONG SWINGING RIGHT HAND TO THE VAN DYKE MEADOWS.

The jolly old annoyance is drifting back to the moist medieval days when batsman was out on first bounce. Only difference now is that you must crash him hard enough to make him bounce.

CULBRANSEN The Registering Piano

The Only REGISTERING Piano

What an astounding change has come to pass in pianos played by music roll and pedals! To bring yourself musically up-to-the-minute—investigate the REGISTERING Piano.

What an amazingly finer and altogether better quality of music you can now play because of this new day Registering feature! To realize how completely this epoch-making idea has upset all your former opinions of instruments of this type—get acquainted with the Culbransen.

Keys pressed down, as in hand playing—not knocked down, as in yesterday's player-pianos. That's what the Culbransen Registering feature does! It registers your exact "touch" on each note. You can graduate each note's shading, not merely play it loudly or softly. With such direct and perfect control as the Culbransen gives of each and every note on the keyboard, you can regulate their tone—separately, individually—exactly as the pianist does in professional concert playing!

Why be content with an inferior quality of music when with the Culbransen you can play with all the life—all the feeling—all the delicate gradations of expression you admire so much in the finest hand playing?

Why be satisfied with an ordinary player-piano when—at the same price, or less—you can now own an instrument so superior in every way as the Easy-to-Play Registering Culbransen.

JEWS.

Egypt drove out the Jews because they were too rich and powerful, claims Carter, who opened King Tut's tomb. This doesn't tally with the old story that the Israelites were delivered from bondage against the wishes of the king.

Carter says archaeologists believe that the Exodus was a forced expulsion, as if the Egyptians feared the Jews would soon own the country.

Regardless of the Exodus, it's true that persecution of the Jews through the centuries has been largely animated by jealousy—inability to compete with them.

TEXTILES TO TEXAS.

It is reported that plans are under way to transfer the industry of a number of New England cotton mills to Texas, because of better labor conditions and the proximity of raw material supply. This is an economic necessity. One effect should be the strengthening of the Texas support of the protective tariff policy. Texas is already possessed of a large amount of protection sentiment, but not enough yet to elect protectionist congressmen. Texas representatives vote for high duties on schedules of interest to their state, but they wince on the bill when it comes up for a vote as a whole. Even Brother Bailey, of the Houston Post, who violently decries the protective policy, is very insistent that Texas people buy in Texas instead of outside the state. Republicans simply extend this doctrine and encourage buying in the United States in preference to foreign lands such as we are able to produce.

AN "A" FOR AN "I."

"A little knowledge is a dangerous thing" quoth the sage. When a democratic publican makes the statement that President Coolidge raised the duty on sodium nitrate, one of the bases for fertilizer it either juggled with the truth or displayed ignorance. Sodium nitrite and sodium nitrate are two distinct and separate articles, both chemically and in the purposes for which used. Sodium nitrite is a chemical used in the manufacture of coal-tar dyes and is not used as a fertilizer. Therefore the increase in the duty on that article has no effect on fertilizers. Sodium nitrate, used to make fertilizer, and the bulk of which comes from Chile, sometimes called Chilean saltpeter, is on the free list, and will remain there. We don't produce it, and hence have no such industry to protect.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT.

If you like delicious things to eat, you certainly picked out the wrong generation in which to live. The cookery of centuries ago must have been exquisite, judging from the writing of some of the ecstatic eaters. The king of Bithynia, Asia Minor, on one of his military expeditions, developed a violent craving for an ocean herring. The ocean was far away. So the king's cook took a big turnip, cut it into the shape of a herring, fried it in oil, seasoned it with the powdered grains of a dozen poppies. The king swore it was the finest fish he ever ate. While you've eaten many a fish that tasted as good, it illustrates the phenomenal skill of ancient cooks. Cooking is sometimes classed as one of the lost arts. The most famous course at banquets of rich Romans of old was humming-bird tongues, brought long distances by relays of swift runners. Today they'd use refrigerator cars or airplanes. Greek chefs of several thousand years ago were able to serve a whole pig, roasted on one side and boiled on the other, so skillfully prepared that the two parts were as distinct as if cooked separately. Tasty? Well, the stuffing was saturated with a dozen or more kinds of wine.

A race of gluttons was the natural development from this marvelous ancient cooking. A past-master of them, named Apicius, specialized at large shrimps. Hearing that the shrimps along the African coast were much larger, he actually bought a ship, made the trip, was disappointed, and returned in deep melancholy.

Philoxenus, asked what he wished most, promptly answered: "A crane's neck, so I would be longer in partaking of my meals." Those good old days are gone. The last stronghold of eating as a ceremony was the banquet, now being made extinct by prohibition.

Even the traditional Sunday diner is losing out, in the number of courses if not in taste. People are beginning to eat scientifically, by calories—and getting the job finished as quickly as possible, gulping.

It's just as well that cookery is becoming a lost art, though for fine cooks ruin more digestions than good cooks, by enticing to over-eating.

BETTER LOCOMOTIVES.

The New York Central railroad has been trying out a new type of locomotive which burns oil instead of coal and has an electric drive, like some of the newer warships. There is a 300 horsepower oil engine which operates a 200 kilowatt generator, which in turn supplies power to four 50-horsepower motors, geared separately to four axles.

It is found that this engine can be operated at about one-third the cost of a steam locomotive because there is so little of the fuel and power wasted, and that it is entirely smokeless.

Such a combination of cleanliness and power should be a boon to the railroads, to shippers and to the entire public. A time may come yet when our railroads will cease to be things of ugliness, smoke and dirt, tolerated only for their efficiency.

UNCHANGED.

A hill tribe that hasn't changed its customs for 3000 years is discovered in northern Africa. They live the same as their ancestors of 30 centuries ago.

We'd have less confusion and get our bearings if we stood still for 10 years or more. Science and applied economics are developing faster than man's ability to control them.

Dire straits of the wets are evidenced by the fact that in Harrisburg, Saline county, dynamite is used in an attempt to blow up the houses and kill the families who have assisted the sheriff to enforce the prohibition law. This sort of tactics foretold the doom of the licensed saloon in this country.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 13—A TRIP TO IRELAND

"My goodness!" chirped old Mrs. Robin sleepily.

"Are you awake?" called Johnny Jump Up, the garden fairy, through the children's window.

"Y—yes!" said Nick sleepily, sitting up in bed and rubbing his eyes.

"Oh, hello, Johnny," he called. "Are we going anywhere tonight?"

"Yes, indeed," answered the jolly little fellow, "and a long trip it will be. Hop out of bed both of you and get dressed and slip on these magic shoes as fast as you can. Tommy Titmouse is eating bugs in the garden and if we don't get him out of that pretty soon, he'll be too full to carry us to the barn and back."

In a very few minutes the Twins were ready and quickly followed Johnny Jump Up down the rose vine.

"My goodness!" chirped old Mrs. Robin sleepily as she opened one eye and saw them in the moonlight. "The rose bugs are thick this year. I'll have to be paying that rose vine a visit tomorrow."

For she thought the fairyman and his two tiny friends were rose bugs. And no wonder! The way the Twins had shrunk 'n' everything when they put on their magic shoes!

Over in a corner of the garden was a patch of something that looked like clover. But it wasn't clover. It was shamrock. And right in the middle of the shamrock patch stood a tiny Irishman smoking a pipe.

"Good evening, Pat," said Johnny Jump Up. "Meet Nancy and Nick."

"Good evening," said the tiny fellow tipping his hat like a great gentleman. "May the saints bless ye both."

"Did you bring us the tickets, Pat?" asked Johnny Jump Up.

"Sure and I did," declared the kind little man with a merry twinkle in his eye. "Far be it from meself to kape anny one away from such a fine place as Oirland. When the

How the Boss Tests His Candidates

The BIG BOSS, head of the business, is a bachelor and lives at the Union Club. Like most bachelors, he has his own ways of doing things. One way is this:

Before he promotes a man to an important position he invites the man to dinner at the club. There they mix with the other club members and the boss checks up how his man looks and acts in the company of men of affairs.

No employee who disappoints the boss at the club ever gets a second invitation. And those men in the office who come to work carelessly dressed never so much as get a first invitation to dinner.

RADIO PROMOTERS BETTER TASTE IN HOME FURNISHINGS

Women Rely on Broadcast Information on De- corations.

Red plush photograph albums, parlor whatnots and horsehair furniture have largely vanished from the homes of the land along with the other decorative doodads of a few generations ago, but there are still many American homes where artistic interior decoration has continued to be conspicuous by its absence.

Toward correcting this situation, radio is undoubtedly contributing more today than any other single factor. Not only has the new era brought thousands of homes into daily and intimate contact with the great outside world and its large and varied interests, but it has brought into homes new ideas and additional knowledge of everyday problems and interests which are helping to make the average home a much happier and more attractive place in which to live.

Housewives all over the land not only have an opportunity to hear the best of music and to keep abreast with the events of the day, but many features of radio programs are broadcast for their special enjoyment and help. Even more important than the menus for family meals, dressmaking and millinery hints, and bedtimes stories for the children are the talks broadcast on home decoration and furnishing. These talks are given by experts whose artistic taste may safely be followed and who make suggestions so concrete and practical that they are among the most popular and useful features of radio programs today. Through them the housewife in the smallest village or on the remotest farm comes in touch with current ideas in the metropolitan centers as to home furnishings and decorations.

Not only does she learn that fringed lace, seashells with ribbons tied around them, and dried ferns under glass have "passed out," but she also is informed what has "come in" to take their place.

The radio brings her up to date and reliable information on color schemes, draperies, wall paper, hangings, pictures, upholstery, and types of furniture. Helpful hints are offered for her guidance in decorating and furnishing every room in the house. Letters to broadcasting stations in all sections of the country indicate the popularity of these talks.

This phase of radio is only another indication of the indispensable place which it is assuming in the home. One reason for the popularity of radio in the home and the rapid increase in the use of receiving sets is that simple types of sets, such as the Acme reflex which any member of the family can set up and operate, are available at reasonable prices. The tendency of the newest advance in the radio art is toward simplicity of control. No longer is radio a complicated maze of wires and controls which confuse women and discourage their use of it. Circuits have been developed which require fewer operations and controls than ever before. A reflex set is as easy to operate as a phonograph. It requires less tubes than ordinary sets, and the control is simple and dependable. Its characteristics of simplicity and loud and clear reception of distant as well as nearby stations strongly commend it to women. Reflex sets operate on a small loop and thereby do away with the nuisance of an antenna and ground connection.

Then, too, many women are making their own sets nowadays. Many of them think it less difficult to assemble such sets as the reflex types than it is to do complicated embroidery. One company has issued a booklet entitled "Amplification Without Distortion," which particularly appeals to women fans because of the simplicity and non-technical explanation of the principles of radio and of the assembling and operation of circuits.

Perhaps women were a little slower in taking up radio than the men folks but they are now making up for lost time, and it is a safe prediction that no woman who has become accustomed to a radio receiving set in her home will ever again do without one and the number of women availing themselves of the benefits and enjoyments of radio is bound to increase rapidly.

Newsy Notes of Democrats Told by A. P. Writers

By Associated Press Leased Wire

New York, June 23.—Most of the New York Newspapers in their editorials today, deal chiefly with platform problems. The World, however, vigorously assails the candidacy of William G. McAdoo for the presidential nomination and declares for Governor Alfred E. Smith as the leader of "the best interests of the democratic party."

The "possibility of victory and the right of victory," says the World, depends upon the fight being waged by Governor Smith. The Herald Tribune describes the league of nations, the Ku Klux Klan and prohibition as issues, which are "as unrelated to reality in this year of 1924 as Mr. McAdoo's spotless robe of righteousness liberalism." The Times finds "much better reasons" for a party declaration in favor of American entrance into the league of nations than existed in 1920, while the American says "the party must free itself from every taint of booze and boodle."

When he was asked today whether he expected to make any speeches in the convention, William Jennings Bryan replied: "I am like a volunteer fireman. I hope there will be no alarm, but I am ready to fight a conflagration."

With the Georgia delegation to the convention comes Jim Democrat, a negro who claims the distinction of having "fetched" the doctor when William G. McAdoo was born, and a negro mammy who nursed Mr. McAdoo when he was a baby.

Nicholas M. Bell, 82, a retired farmer of St. Louis, Mo., who placed Horatio Seymour in nomination for president at the democratic convention held in Tammany Hall in 1868, declares he is for Governor Jonathan Davis of Kansas, for president, because he believes in "corn-fed statesmen."

Senator "Pat" Harrison, keynote, was missing last night from his hotel. Some said he was out practicing his keynote. It developed that he had fled from friends who wanted to talk convention "dope."

There are no "second choice" candidates at this convention, if leaders of delegations boosting particular candidates are to be taken at face value. They are all going to keep on voting for favorite sons until the end of time.

In the midst of the crowd in the corridors of the Waldorf Astoria last night, a little party formed which passed unrecognized by many of the democratic delegates and politicians. In the party was Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes, E. C. Yellowley, chief of prohibition agents and Izzy Einstein, who had the ear of his chiefs for frequent conversations.

Lodge News

The regular meeting of Dixon lodge, No. 773, B. P. O. E. Elks will be held this evening at 8 o'clock. Sessions of sorrow will be conducted for Frank Nagle and S. S. Dodge and a class of candidates will be initiated.

WAR WIDOWS WED
London.—The British Isles have 100,000 fewer war widows today than there were immediately after the armistice. Most of them have remarried, records show, although some of that number have died. There still are 150,000 widows on the books of the pensions ministry, however.

Birds have the most remarkable memory of all wild life.

GIANT PITCHERS SUDDENLY SHOW EXPECTED FORM

And New York Fans Can Not See Cubs for Pen- nant Honors.

By Associated Press Licensed Wire
Opinion is tending to the conclusion that if one of the New York teams is shot out of the world series this fall it will be the Giants.

"The team without a pitching staff" which won a pennant last season and worried along in first place through the first two months of the current race, has suddenly come into possession of the biggest staff of victory producers. Last week six Giant hurlers won seven games, allowing slightly more than a run and less than seven hits to each game.

Joe Bush, of the Yankees, was driven from the box by the Red Sox yesterday while his mates, Ruth included, failed to worry Elmer. The 6 to 2 victory broke a six game losing streak for the Red Sox and allowed them to keep a point ahead of Washington as the Senators beat Rommel and the Athletics, 5-4.

The Indians won their fourteenth game in nineteen starts by beating Detroit, 7-5. The win advanced Cleveland to within four and one-half games of the top.

Manager Sisler and Pat Collins, suspended indefinitely as an aftermath of the pop bottle incident at St. Louis, Saturday, were out of the game which the Browns lost yesterday to Chicago, 6-4. The Giants and Cubs were not in action.

Cincinnati moved into the first division by its 9-4 defeat of the Pirates. Jake Fournier made his 14th homer of the season in the 7-6 Phillies' win over Brooklyn.

LEFT ARM IN THE SWING
In the forward swing of the golf club the left arm plays a very important part and, strange enough, it does this largely by doing nothing at all. I might say:

All this left arm has to do is keep straight and stay close to your side. I have often mentioned keeping the left arm close to the side as you go through the ball, but apparently there are many players who understand that the left arm flies away out after the ball.

When the clubhead comes down to the ball the action is somewhat like throwing a hammer, say, to a spot on the ground exactly where the ball is. The left arm keeps straight and the clubhead is actually thrown. This throw makes the clubhead attain its maximum velocity from a point some two or three feet back of the ball to a point about equally in front of it. The wrists, you will, will go into the ball automatically if you keep them well relaxed during the back swing of the club. Chester Horton, seeking some automatic method by which the average golfer might accomplish this left arm action without having to think about it at the time, has created a fine term for it in his "pull-down." That is what the left arm action really is—pull down of the clubhead directly to the ball.

The left arm travels literally with the body in the forward swing. The player should keep it in lightly close, just as he keeps the right elbow lightly close to his side during the back swing. With the left arm lightly close to the side, in the forward swing, you are enabled to strike the ball with a stiff right-arm punch, plus all your body weight, at the moment of impact.

You must be careful, however, not to really stiffen the left arm as you bring the club down. The down-pull action is more in the forearm than directly at the ball with your fist. Then let your weight go through with the club to the left leg, which braces against the instinctive push from the right side of your body and gives you the leverage on the ball.

A splendid rule is—right elbow lightly against the side in the back swing; left elbow lightly against the side in the forward swing. You can get this by putting a ball in your right arm pit first, for the back swing, then in your left arm during the down swing. Make the swing without letting the ball fall out.

Reds and Pirates in Train Wreck Saturday

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 22.—The Pennsylvania train, carrying the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati National league baseball clubs to Cincinnati was wrecked at Walker's Mills, a short distance from Carnegie, a suburb, last night. Baseball writers on the train reported to their newspapers that none of the players had been seriously injured.

Two coaches of the passenger train were derailed, but no one was injured according to announcement by the Pennsylvania railroad. The wreck was caused, according to the railroad company, when a derailed freight car swerved into the passenger train. Both tracks were blocked.

Paul Sarichef, Iehmin's secretary, Iehmin and Peter's wife, Dorothy, had urged him to go to South America. He joins Big Chris Larson in response to a distress signal at sea, giving Larson his sea jacket. Their launch hits rocks. Larson's body is buried as Newhall's, Peter, rescued, finds injuries have completely changed his appearance. Dorothy and Iehmin go to Alaska to return Peter's body. They do not recognize Peter in their head guide. A storm strands them at the straits. "Change name," a message from a seance. Dorothy believes to be from Peter, telling her to accept his marriage proposal. They are married by a native priest. Peter gives them best wishes. Paul Sarichef appears on the scene.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"You knew I was here. Of course the squaw described me, and you guessed who it was?"

"No. You know I wouldn't have come if I'd known that, if I'd known it was you. I don't know why I came except it was just because I couldn't help it."

Ivan's vivid eyes opened wide, then the lids dropped again. "Out with it, man. You've cooked your goose and have done all the damage you can. Is it blackmail? If not, what are you doing here?"

Sarichef straightened and sighed. "I was living on the other side of the Peninsula. You know that—and a few nights ago—I heard some one call me—some one told me to come here."

"You've good ears to hear across the Peninsula?"

"I don't expect you to understand," Sarichef returned with some dignity. "I'm trying to tell you—just how it was. A few nights ago I got the idea that some one wanted me—here—that some one was calling me. It came just as clear as an actual voice. I tried to turn away and disregard it, but somehow I couldn't. 'Paul Sarichef, Paul Sarichef,' the voice kept crying—and it told me to come here, to this very spot. You know how a man obeys a hunch. That's what it was. I guess a hunch—but I couldn't disregard it."

The grim smile flickered at Ivan's mouth again. "How many nights ago was this?"

"Four nights ago. I started the next morning, and halfway across I met old Sindvi, with her back loaded with grub. She told me there were people here, needing help, and I offered to carry her pack on over and let her go back."

"Four nights ago?" Ivan turned and met the girl's fixed, startled gaze. "Dorothy, do you remember what happened four nights ago?"

"The seance!" the girl answered dully.

"The seance! You haven't forgotten, have you, that you asked to speak to Paul Sarichef—and that Fortune Joe called him? You remember how all of us felt the tension as he broadcasted that silent call? Sarichef was not in the spirit world, but he answered just the same. He came, and he doesn't know why. Was it hypnosis or some other occult thing, or was it just black-mail—who can say?"

But the wonder of this mystery could not long obscure the real issues that faced this baffled trio in the fire's glow. They stood silent, as if listening to the sea and the wind, but their thoughts moved in sweeping circles. The two packers, curious but wholly failing to understand, moved and rustled in the darkness like wild beasts; and enveloped in a deep, strange calm that was reflected in his immobile face and quiet eyes, Pete watched the slow unfolding of the drama.

CHAPTER XIX

The "Dead" Has Risen

Ivan turned abruptly from Sarichef, and smiling faintly in appeal, stepped in front of Dorothy.

He paused, and the girl started to turn away. Ivan held her gently, his hands at her arms just below her shoulders. "I don't want to talk about it," she told him.

"But you must hear me, Dorothy. I wanted you, and I had to have you. I loved you enough to risk my reputation, to do evil to a respected friend, in order to win you. Don't you realize that this showed a love of which your Anglo-Saxon men would be wholly incapable? Poor Peter was the victim—but he has gone now, and you must seek your happiness in me, your husband?"

"My husband?" the girl echoed, as if the thought were incredible to her. "Yes. You are my wife. You don't owe any more loyalty to Peter—only to me. When you married me you

Her wide-open eyes fixed on his thin, stark-white face; but her expression did not change, and she was so baffled and estranged by what had occurred that at first she seemed hardly aware of him. He reached for her hands, but she put them away from him.

"Don't draw away," he urged quickly. "He spoke softly now, for her ears alone. 'Dearest, you must forgive me.'"

"I can't forgive you," was her subdued answer. She spoke without emotion, almost in that monotone with which one talks in sleep.

"You must. It's the only possible course. You must realize that. I don't expect you to forget right away—even to vindicate me until I've at least won you to my point of view—but you must forgive. Don't you see it was all for you?"

"I am aware that I charged Peter with a crime he didn't do—that I caused him to flee, and that while he was gone he died. But Dorothy, this world is of the living. When people are dead they cease to be, so far as the living world is concerned. You have found happiness in me:

FOR A SINGLE INSTANT IVAN HELD HER HELPLESS.

don't lose it again for an evil done long ago. Don't let the dead past shadow the living present.

"Every man does wicked deeds, only most of them don't get caught. Many and many a man wants to do wicked deeds that he doesn't dare to do—to gain his ends. Other men have loved you, and have wished desperately that Peter would die and leave you free—but they haven't loved you enough—they didn't have the courage to make their wish come true. You know your Christian teaching—that there is no distinction drawn between him who wants to do evil and him who really does it. The thing I did many men would have been glad to do, if they had dared to take the risk."

He paused, and the girl started to turn away. Ivan held her gently, his hands at her arms just below her shoulders. "I don't want to talk about it," she told him.

"But you must hear me, Dorothy. I wanted you, and I had to have you. I loved you enough to risk my reputation, to do evil to a respected friend, in order to win you. Don't you realize that this showed a love of which your Anglo-Saxon men would be wholly incapable? Poor Peter was the victim—but he has gone now, and you must seek your happiness in me, your husband?"

"My husband?" the girl echoed, as if the thought were incredible to her. "Yes. You are my wife. You don't owe any more loyalty to Peter—only to me. When you married me you took me for better for worse—and that means you take my past crimes on your head. You share everything with me, and that means you share my past, too. It will go hard at first, and you will be bitter; but I want you to put it out of your mind. You've got to be my partner now, even in my evil deeds. Dorothy, I want you to respect, rather than scorn that quality of unconquerable purpose in me that won't let me forego the things that I want; and particularly I want you to remember that it was all for you. The thing is closed and done, part of the dead past; and I want you to put it out of your mind."

The girl straightened and sighed. "I wish you'd go away," she said dully. "I can't forget it, and never can, and I can't forgive it. Everything is over between us. Now let me go—I'm going into my tent."

His hand pressed more tightly at her shoulders, and he looked meaningfully into her eyes. "Into our tent," he corrected easily.

The girl shook her head; but her expression did not change. "No. I renounce our marriage. My door is closed to you forever." At this point her slim body straightened, and her voice—though it did not increase in volume—took on a hushed, unmistakable tone of emphasis. "Understand everything clearly, Ivan, now as well as later. I don't consider myself your wife from now on. I'm going to my tent—you must go to yours. Your hands have no longer any right to hold me. Tomorrow the guides and I will go away in the dory, in search for the settlements. If you want to come you may, but it won't be as my husband, and you must never appear in the United States again. You've asked me to choose between my husband's honor and you, my husband's murderer. I choose my husband's honor."

At this point she paused, faltering; and for one brief instant she did not know the cause of the sudden wind of terror that blew through her being, closing her throat and choking back her brave words. In that instant Ivan's attitude had changed. Outwardly there was little sign; possibly certain lines deepened on his white face and his vivid eyes looked dull red, like glowing, dying coals under his fine brows. A wisp of smoke, determined rather than cruel, curled at his lips.

It was not that he had misunderstood her words. He was not such a fool as to think this merely a burst of temporary indignation, soon to pass away. Dorothy had meant exactly what she said. Yet her opposition only made her more desirable to him, heightened the fire of his madness. His strong arms went about her, and he pressed his lips to hers.

Dorothy, who watched from the mouth of the dugout, grunted softly, as if in reflection of his master's passion. Pete made one uneasy move in the shadows, but he was not yet sure of his course, and preparations were not yet complete, so he paused, waiting for what might befall. Dorothy struggled in a sudden frenzy of hate and scorn, as if the kiss had ravished her integrity. For a single instant Ivan held her helpless—just long enough to show her he was her master—then he let her go.

"Oh!" she breathed. "You wouldn't dare."

She halted because she was afraid to go on. Ivan was fully awakened now. He was shaking off the last vestiges of his conventionality as a dog shakes off water, and with it went the veneer that western civilization had bestowed upon him. The rock-ribbed waste of barren deserts, the sea had always possessed a deep, stirring appeal for him; and tonight he yielded to it as never before. It called to his deeply hidden primitive side, and what was left him, there in the weird freight, was altogether Asia.

The racial differences she had seen in him had been vague and of no great importance before; but now they estranged her and terrified her.

Gov. Davis is Seeking

Something for Farmer

Kansas City, Mo., June 21.—The primary purpose of Governor J. M. Davis of Kansas in going to the democratic national convention is to get something done for the farmer he declared here last night while resting between trains on his way to New York.

The Kansas governor's candidacy for the democratic presidential nomination is only incidental, he said. But when he was introduced as the "next president of the United States" he nodded acknowledgement of the introduction.

The WELL DRESSED MAN

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Semi-Formal Evening Dress

The Tuxedo may be termed our National Evening Suit, because, unlike in England, it is the preference of the average American for every formal function after sundown. This is not quite as it should be. The swallowtail (full dress) coat has a well-defined place and purpose in evening dress. It belongs to those very ceremonious occasions, such as an evening wedding, when, strictly speaking, no other turnout is permissible. However, as Edmund Burke observed, you cannot draw up an indictment against a whole people. The creed of comfort has given the Tuxedo a tremendous vogue and, to be sure, its popularity is greater than ever in Summer.

Whilst the Tuxedo is commonly referred to as informal evening wear, it is more properly described as semi-formal. Any mode of dress the basic theme of which is black-and-white, each a ceremonious color, cannot be other than formal or semi-formal; it is never informal. Being, then, semi-formal, the Tuxedo prescribes the wing collar, not the fold-over shape; the black bow-knot tie; the starched or semi-starched shirt-front; the white handkerchief; black silk or lisle hose or black with white or black side cloaks; patent leather Oxfords or dull-finished low shoes; the soft hat, the black derby or, in mid-most Summer, the fine sennit or China split straw having the black, not the colored, ribbon.

LETTER FROM BEATRICE GRIMSHAW TO SALLY ATHONTON

Sometimes, Sally dear, I think you are the most sympathetic woman on earth; and then again you say something which makes me think you are as hard as nails. One thing I will say for you, however—"age cannot wither nor custom stale your infinite variety."

I wonder if having to earn one's living has anything to do with making one hard. If it does I think perhaps that far-famed economic independence of which we hear so much about does not make for the greatest happiness of a woman.

I think, Sally dear, we will have to live many, many centuries before we get that peculiar faculty which now is purely masculine of dismissing hurts, griefs, joys, love and saying "That's that." I for one do not want to get over that peculiarly sensitive feeling that belongs to women. I'd rather grieve a lot than be incapable of grief. In fact, I think one of the greatest sorrows I ever had was when I thought I was not being sorry any more because Dick had left me.

You say you were not at all happy with Sam and in one of your letters you intimated that you were glad he was out of your life. Have you seen any happier without him, Sally dear?

I really like to know. You had a good deal to say about Dick, my dear, when you answered my letter, but you did not answer my question which was, does a woman ever regain trust in a man after she has once been disillusioned. Personally, after this episode with Dick, I have come to the conclusion that something goes out of one's life with every illusion that is shattered, and a hardness comes in which, while it may make for independence of thought and action, never makes for great, great happiness.

I shall be over to see you, however, Sally dear, very soon. I am very anxious to come because I want to tell you face to face what I shall think of you if you hairboogie! Leslie's husband has become interested in you. If he were anybody but Leslie's husband I wouldn't mind so much, but Leslie, as you say, is one of the dearest girls I have ever known and I know she cares very much for that goodlooking husband of hers. In my heart I am quite sure she has forgiven him much, although there has been no intimation of it to me—and because some of her illusions in regard to her husband have smashed, I am not sure that some of that sadness that one sometimes sees in her face has come in their place. But I am afraid she would not forgive him a second time, so don't shatter any more of her illusions.

I met Sidney Carton at the wedding and I liked him very much indeed. He is not as goodlooking as Jack Prescott and I don't think he's as egotistical. He seemed to admire Leslie very much, even then, but I think he's the kind of a man that even if he did care for his friend's wife, would keep it to himself.

How very foolish for you and me to go on conjecturing things like this. From the letters that Leslie writes to me she seems very happy, but we will talk it over when I see you, which I hope will be very soon.

Affectionately,

LIBRARY NOTES

THE TIMBER-WOLF

By Jackson Gregory

Love him or hate him, Timber-Wolf is a heroic figure. The little village of Big Pine, on the edge of the Southwestern wilderness, is in turmoil when he rides into the novel—gold had been struck; adventures had crowded in from every direction. There was foul play and danger of rioting, and one of his friends was in trouble. "So tonight he came riding down the winding trail from his mountain, singing. Thus he shot his spirit across the miles ahead of him, to invade Big Pine before his coming, to taunt before he brought his hard eyes to mock at them. He had received his word and his warning, and made his retort in the one way possible to him."

In Big Pine the situation became more complicated, and men had reached the point of desperate measures.

"It was at this moment that Bruce Standing, Timber-Wolf, rode into town. He rode alone, on a powerful red-bay gelding, silent now, a great bulked man sitting straight in the saddle. One saw nothing of his face under the wide black hat."

What ensued involved a young woman, Lynette Brooke, who had the blood of prospectors; and Babe Dev-eril, a daring adventurer; a long flight into the wilderness, followed by the vengeance of the sheriff; a series of thrilling incidents in the good green-wood, and the devil to pay generally.

It is a story of action and of the wide open, dominated always by the heroic figure of Timber-Wolf.

The Lesson of Economy

The principle of conservation, through efficient management and rigid economy, is so ingrained in the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) as to be fundamental to the operation of this business.

Years ago, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) learned that the only way to keep a big business on a thoroughly efficient plane is to plug up the small leaks. Accordingly, painstaking attention was given to ways and means of overcoming wasteful details, unimportant and inexpensive in themselves, but taken as a whole assuming enormous proportions.

The practice of economy is thoroughly grounded in the personnel of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and has profoundly influenced the activities of the Company.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is the unquestioned pioneer of conservation methods in the oil business.

Back of every important innovation made by this Company stand these questions: "Does this change improve the quality and service?—Does it effect a saving?"

For example, the famous Burton Cracking Process now in general use was originated to conserve the supply of petroleum—to produce a greater percentage of gasoline from crude oil, without in any way affecting the quality of lubricating oils and other primary products.

The Burton Cracking Process has increased largely the yield of gasoline from a barrel of crude, thereby exerting a marked influence in keeping the price of gasoline low.

Conservation led to the erection of farms of steel tanks—to insure a constant supply of crude petroleum—to enable the refiner to reduce his cost by continuous operations—to store the finished product without undue loss from evaporation.

Conservation again was back of the establishment of pipe lines, because they were the most economical method of transporting oil.

The conservation idea led finally to the vast distribution system which covers the ten Middle Western States and carries petroleum products from the refineries of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) to farms, factories and individual users, everywhere.

The practice of economy and conservation has been a potent force in developing the splendid system which this Company offers to the thirty million people of the Middle West.

DUNTILE

Builds Better Buildings Cheaper

THIS is what we mean by a better building. One that is a better place in which to live or work, one that performs its functions in a more thorough way. It must be a healthful building, free from dampness. A comfortable building, warm in winter and cool in summer. It cannot burn down, neither must it deteriorate with age,—it must be permanent. A modern building that stays modern and an attractive building that has its value enhanced by a distinctive beauty.

To build such a building cheaper means that the cost of materials must be less and that the job be done more rapidly with less labor and material. Not only should the first cost be less, but the later expense of repair and upkeep should be eliminated.

Duntile builds such buildings, better and cheaper.

"Station-to-Station" Service Is Quickest

Thousands of long distance telephone calls are made on the "station-to-station" basis, that is, the calling party asks only for the number of the called telephone or gives the name and address of the called subscriber without designating a particular person.

This service is the quickest and it saves you about 20 per cent.

In many cases the person you want will answer or is immediately available; if not, you can often deal satisfactorily with the one who answers.

"Long Distance" will be glad to tell you more about this time and money saving service.

"Station-to-Station" long distance calls meet almost every requirement and the day rates are about 20% lower than for "person-to-person" calls. Evening rates are about 50% and night rates 75% lower than day rates for "station-to-station" calls, but no rate is reduced below 25 cents. Consult the telephone directory for further details or call "Long Distance."
